Abstract of the Disclosure

A method for facilitating relocation includes receiving user preferences, calculating from service provider quoted and actual performance data the 5 probability of a successful relocation, and selecting and recommending service providers that will provide a relocation at the lowest cost with the highest probability of success. Apparatus for facilitating relocations includes input devices for receiving user

10 preferences, output devices for sending recommendations and reports, a data storage device with a database for storing user preferences, service provider quoted performance data and service provider actual performance data, and a processor, connected to the input devices,

15 output devices and data storage device, that performs the method for facilitating relocation.